LSU's Tuition Is Increased

BATON ROUGE (AP) - Louisiana State University Saturday raised the tuition for Louisiana residents at its main campus here and the New Orleans branch to $35 a semester.

In addition, the $35 activity fee here was boosted to $50 a semester. The $15 fee at LSUNO remained unchanged. The raises become effective in September. No change was made in the $150 tuition fee for out-of-state residents. The problems created by reduced state appropriations in the face of additional enrollment make it mandatory that additional sources of revenue be provided, the LSU board said.

SACRAMENTO, Calif (AP) -Five youths out for an afternoon rabbit hunt spent eight anxious hours on an island in the surging American River

They were rescued Friday midnight just behind a drivein movie showing "In Search of the Castaways.'

There never was any danger that the island would be swamped. But the young hunters didn't know how high the rain-swollen river might rise.

"When we went there His lordship watched as fire was just a trickle of water and less than half an hour later, it was over our heads,' said the oldest youth, Douglas Leard, 18.

> Authorities summoned helicopters but none arrived. Finally firemen used a harpoon gun to shoot a rope across the waters to the island. Two skindivers from the Aerojet-General Corp. rescue squad reached the island and secured the rope to trees.

The skindivers, Earl Couand Vernal Kimmey, fastened a parachute harness around each boy, one at a time, and they were pulled to the shore.

Find Going Can

SACRAMENTO, Calif (AP) -Five youths out for an afternoon rabbit hunt spent eight anxious hours on an island in the surging American River near Sacramento.

They were rescued Friday midnight just behind a drivein movie showing "In Search of the 'Castaways.'" There never was any danger that the island would be swamped. But the young hunters didn't know how high the rain-swollen river might rise. "When we went there was just a trickle of water and less than half an hour later, it was over our heads," said the oldest youth, Douglas Leard, 18. Authorities summoned helicopters but none arrived. Finally firemen used a harpoon gun to shoot a rope across the waters to the island. Two skindivers from the Aerojet-General Corp. rescue squad reached the island and secured the rope to trees. The skindivers, Earl Couter and Vernal Kimmey, fastened a parachute harness around each boy, one at a time, and they were pulled to the shore.

Might Bar Government Cargo Load

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Kennedy is expected to issue regulations next week barring government or government-financed cargo from ships which have carried goods to Cuba since the beginning of the year. The crackdown, in the works since last fall, is part of the United States campaign to isolate the Castro regime and make its acquisition of supplies more Administration sources said Kennedy will act within the next few days, perhaps on Monday. White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger would say only that the order is in the works.

The widely promoted idea of world friendship through cultural exchange took a beating this week with President De Gaulle's thumbs down on Britain's membership in the European Common Market.

The French leader's ac jon was a slap at both Britand the United States. even though this country wasn't directly involved.
And to think, only a few weeks ago, the dispatching of the Mona Lisa to the United States from Louvre was supposed to represent a high spot in U.S. - French relations. Maybe that's the reason for the wry smile Leonardo da Vinci painted on his subject's mouth.

One of these days we'll learn the arts — when they get beyond the most primitive stags - have nothing to do with politics as such.

The Roger Wagner Chorale, which enjoys the standing of one of America's finest singing groups, will perform twice at La. Tech's Howard Auditorium Thursday. The student concert is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. and the general membership performance is set for 8 p.m.

The mixed choir is made up of two dozen voices and is headed by its founder and director Roger Wagner. The choir had its beginnings in 1947 and gained fame through appearances in Hollywood Bowl and with the Los Angeles Philharmonic. Since that time, the group has toured also Europe. The program announced for the two appearances at Tech will include religious selections from such 16th century composers as Palestrina, Sweelinck, Victoria, Lassus, le Jeune and Mon-

If there are those who think American musicologists and audiences - don't cover a broad front, just remember that a Palestrina motet built on a Gregorian chant and a gospel number by a Stamps quartet all go under the heading of religious music.

MORE COMING

February will have more to offer than the holidays commemorating national heroes' birthdays. The Northeast Concert series has booked the San Francisco Ballet for February 19. Also, the Little Theatre of Monroe is going full blast with rehearsals for the annual musical. This year's effort in that direction. 'Annie Get Your Gun," is expected to open its run in late February or early March. Some years ago, a U. S. cultural analyst made the news with a look into American tastes through the eyes of "low brows, middle brows, and high brows," Though it was not possible to apply one of the brow lengths to everyone, the study hit the nation's funnybone.

Now a musical comedy baritone has come forward with a few comforting re-

Olla's Town Hall.

Olla-Past, Present

By E. W. PLUMMER Correspondent

In the early 1800's, ever increasing numbers of settlers were being attracted to what is now the Olla community in the northwest section of LaSalle Parish, where nature offered her utmost to pioneer living.

Among these many gifts were the fertile valleys of Chickasaw and Castor creeks to grow bountiful crops, great hardwood forests to furnish mast for fattening pigs, lush grass on the hills and hammocks, and a profusion of "switch cane" on the low lands, to provide year around pasturage for cattle. And the forests were teeming with deer, squirrels, and turkeys.

During the mid 1800's, Sulphur Springs on Castor Creek about one mile west of the present town of Olla came into prominence. Two factors contributed much to the growing importance of this point. It was the head of steamboat navigation on Castor Creek, and the sulphur springs there together with the "black mud" expeding from them gained a wide reputation as having marvelous curative power, particularly for rheumatic conditions and gout.

REPUTATION GREW

As the sulphur springs' reputation as a spa and resting resort for vacationers grew, an ever increasing number of people from all parts of the nation went there for treatment and rest. As a consequence, a large hotel with dining facilities was built there and many "for rent" cabins began to dot the beautiful foothills near

A drug store with doctor's office, and a general merchandise store soon followed, then a post office, which was rightly called Sulphur Springs.

The year 1893 ushered a new era to this section of LaSalle Parish, The Houston, Central Arkansas, and Northern railroad (now the Missouri Pacific) was built through Olla and began the first rail service in LaSalle Parish. Plans were mapped out for a future town with the Olla depot as the focal point, and the Olla Military Institute, founded by Riley Joe Wilson (later a congressman) in 1890 as a private secondary school, expanded its services to meet the needs of a rapidly growing population.

'POOR MAN'S COLLEGE'

The Olla Military Institute, headed by the astute Wilson from its inception in 1890 until it was supplanted by a modern public school in 1899, performed an extraordinary service as "the poor man's college."

It's graduates were well founded in mathematics, English and public speaking, history, natural science (physics), orthography,

EDITORIALS, SPOTLIGHT, SPORTS Sunday, Feb. 3, 1963

When the area now occupied by the town of Olla was first settled, its main attractions consisted of forests, fertile cropland, and an abundance of wildlife. Through the years it has developed as a trade center for portions of three parishes.

and other branches of what was then considered "higher learning." Too, the atmosphere of the Institute was such that it created poise, urbanity, and confidence in its pupils.

In addition to academic training, the Institute provided a high order of community entertainment. Precision marching by the "cadets" in their smart uniforms was always a great attraction, and dramatic performances by its pupils were both entertaining and cultural. The Institute's faculty consisted of its president, Wilson, John Paul Jones, Miss Minnie Robertson, Rev. Elijah Bryant, Miss Belle Murphy, and Miss Olla Mills.

SOURCE OF NAME

The Town of Olla was named for Miss Olla Mills, an accomplished and popular young lady who was dramatically inclined, and who took a prominent part in all constructive community activities. Because of her background of education and gift for expression, Miss Mills was chosen to head the English department of the Olla Military Institute, where she served with distinction. She died in 1901 and was buried in Olla.

As was true in the beginning, nature's gifts are still the life blood of Olla. The gathering and shipping forest of products is Olla's chief industry. In addition to lumber, crossties, and piling, Olla ships approximately 3,000 carloads of pulp wood annually. It is loaded by the most modern facility.

The Olla oilfield's 164 producing wells give semployment to more than 200 men, and royalties are paid monthly to a large number of Olla's land owners.

A large dam and spillway was built on Castor Creek one mile west of Olla two years ago, and the waterhead above it provides for a variety of recreational activities. A shady nook near the fabled sulphur springs is a favorite picnicing ground, and the artificial lake resulting from the dam serves both water sport enthusiasts and fishermen. Row crop farming and cattle raising are also important to the economy of Olla.

Making the most of these assets, Olla has become a trade and financial center for large sections of LaSalle, Winn, and Caldwell parishes. A variety of well-stocked stores supply many needs of the buying public, and the local bank with assets in excess of two million dollars, serves the financial needs of the community.

Olla has a modern hospital well staffed by doctors and nurses, and a dental clinic staffed by two doctors of dentistry. The Olla branch of the LaSalle Parish library is housed in a modern new building, serving the community and its schools. The Olla air port accommodates light planes.

Olla's school system approaches the ideal. The elementary and high school plants are located in separate sections of town, and each is of modernistic fire proof construction. LaSalle (Olla) High School offers specialized training in several fields; and its athletic teams, the "Tigers", are always strong competitors in all branches of athletic contests.

Two names stand out among Olla's "personalities of the past." They are Dr. William Vannah Taylor III and W. D. Townsend. Dr. Taylor was elected state representative of Catahoula Parish when it included LaSalle; was elected Olla's first mayor in 1899; and was president of the LaSalle Parish Medical Association for a number of years. He always took a prominent part in community affairs.

Townsend was Louisiana's last surviving Confederate soldier. He died in Olla in 1952 at the age of 107 years.

The people of Olla are justly proud of their town, and its churches representing all faiths common to this section of Louisiana reflect its christian atmosphere.

London Store Scope Global

LONDON (AP) — Harrod's store is big, 64 acres, swank, the queen does her Christmas shopping there, and inimitable, who would even think of building another one?

Its cable address is Everything London and that just about sums up what can be bought at Harrod's, the prodigal department store in London's fashionable Knightshuidge section

You can, in fact, get anything in Harrod's, from reindeer meat to a transistor radio covered in

You can buy theater tickets, get your hair cut, eat in three restaurants, buy a rare book and hire a chauffeur - driven car.

Herrod's will decorate your house as they have for several Eastern Potentates — and they will lay down a tennis court for you.

They will arrange your wedding in every detail and they will bury you. In the best of taste both times.

They will sell you insurance and if they can't get your money any other way, they'll bank it for you.

Touring Americans invariably stop in at Harrod's after those other two musts, the Tower of London and Westminster Abbey, to stock up on Britain's best cashmere and bone china.

To insure that the sun never sets on Harrod's customers, the store will ship their goodies to any accessible point in the world. Harrod's own specially raised pigs are sent to an old customer in Karachi. There are standing orders for steaks from customers in Moscow and Fiji.

AROUND GLOBE

Harrod's has sent boa constrictors to Africa and Persian lambs to Iran.

A man in Los Angeles ordered fresh grouse from Scotland. Because of time zone differences, Harrod's failed to deliver the birds the same day they were shot. But anyone who would say they didn't try would say anything.

Harrod's began as a grocery store in 1849 and its biggest turnover is still in the food department. Food draws the customers into the store and once there they will buy the grand pianos — the store has the largest selection in Europe — and the suitcases — Harrod's makes its own.

Probably all that Henry Har rod would recognize about the store today is his name.

President Or Nothing

High-ranking members of congress say efforts of Chairman Clarence Cannon of the house appropriations committee to trim the president's leadget by $12,000,000 is hopeless. They think even a slash of expenditures by half that amount is out of the question.

Logically, Cannon, who does not want the deficit to shoot upward because of a proposed slash in income taxes, is insisting that his committee bring expenditures down at least to the amount of the tax cut recommended by the presi-

Congress has never been able to make appreciable savings below presidential recommendations. The statement of Charles Dawes, at first budget director 40 years ago, that only the president of the United States can hold down expenditures, seems borne out by facts.

With President Kennedy asking for billions in unwarranted federal aid to schools and with his proposal that federal employes be increased some 36,000 there is scant likelihood of a slash in expenditures. To keep the deficit from skyrocketing still further, the president might put a little money back into one pocket of the taxpayer and take a lot more out of the other pocket. That is exactly what most people think he will do.

He's Going For Help

Proposed federal aid for schools gives about as much promise of real help as was conveyed to airplane passengers in a situation described by Dr. John A. Howard. president of Rockford College.

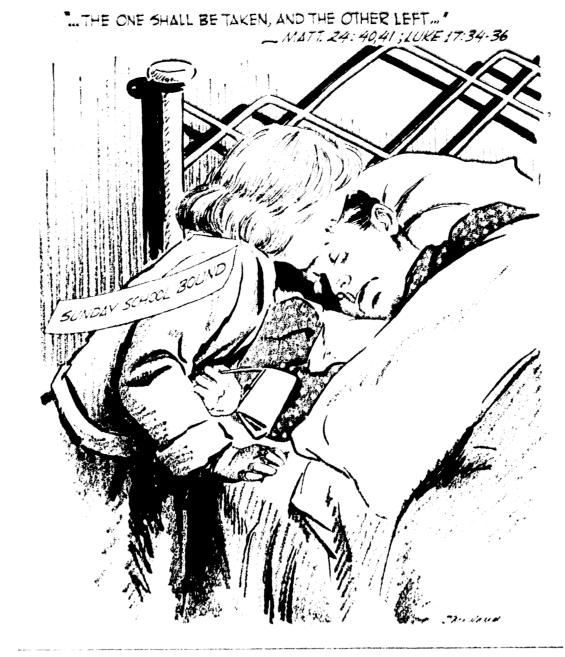

The story is about a commercial flight that encountered some difficulties. Midway between two distant airports one of the engines caught fire. While the pilot was trying to extinguish the blaze a second engine broke into flame and then a third. When all four motors were hopelessly ablaze, the pilot, with a parachute on his back, entered the passenger cabin and, unlatching the emergency exit, shouted to the passengers: "Don't anyone panic. I'm going for help."

Even if the schools now don't have all the money they need, there are two things we can be sure of. They will never be better educationally under government control than they are now and, under such control, they will become propaganda institutions for whatever national regime happens to be in power.

hashly optimistic one In fiscal 1963, the President presented what he called a balanced budget. He estimated that there would actually be a surplus of $300 million in the till when it ended But his recent budget message to Congress for fiscal 1964 shows that the estimated deficit for 1963 will run $3.8 bil-

In other words, in winding up with a design of $8.8 billion where he had predicted a surplas of half a billion, the President made a slight error of more than $9 billion.

This being the case, the American people can be nothing but highly suspicious and highly worried over the President's figures for fiscal 1964. In these figures, the administration estimates a deficit of $11.9 billion for the year. For the sake of argument, let's assume that the President's figures are just as faulty this year as they were last. In such a case, we would have a deficit not of just $11.9 billion, but of more than $20 billion for just one year. Actually, it is difficult to beheve that the President will be as wrong this year as he was last. But there is little doubt in the minds of fiscal experts both in and out of government that the President will be wrong to some degree if Congress adopts his tax program. Sen. Harry F. Byrd, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, for example, has already predicted that the President's $11.9 - billion deficit figure will be more like $14 billion when the final accounting is rendered

The belief that the $11.9 - billion figure for the 1964 deficit is too low stems from the fact that President Kennedy estimated revenue receipts for the year at a figure higher than these receipts ran in the previous fiscal year. And these estimates allow for tax reductions of between $5 billion and $6 billion.

Now, how is this trick performed? How is it possible to cut taxes around $6 billion in a given year and collect more taxes than were taken in during the prevous year? Well, it's perfectly simple - at least on paper. What you do - and what the President did - is say to yourself that the business outlook is so good for the 1964 fiscal year that the Gross National Product will probably run as high as $578 billion, and, consequently, tax revenues will be greatly increased. Then, you take a pencil and paper and figure out that the horizon is so bright that the tax receipts will run more than > Private economists and knowledgeable congressmen can argue antil they're blue in the face that the economic indicators and conditions generally point to a Gross National Product of $565 billion rather than the $578 billion envisioned by the President. And they can make the most of the fact that the President, in fiscal 1962 estimated the GNP at a figure $16 billion higher than the mark it attained!

> But none of them can stop the President from arriving at his own estimate of what will happen and incorporating that estimate into the national budget. The trouble will develop if the Congress of the United States adopts the President's appraisal of the situation and fails to cut back on the spending program of $93.8 billion offered for fiscal

Recreation High

Estimated $20 Billion Annually Spent By Nature Lovers

ted States has become a multi-billion dollar business. An estimated $20 billion is spent annually by nature enthusiasts on activities ranging from picknicking in the park to mountain scaling and speed - hoat racing.

This vast sum is exclusive of gate receipts for professional, school and other amateur sports events, but does include money spent on everything from fishhooks to the most up-to-date camping outfits, expensive watercraft and other equipment acquired by Americans for carrying out the pursuit of their favorite outdoor pursuits.

Catering to this return to nature movement, federal, state and local governments have created 24,000 non - urban parks and other recreational grounds throughout the nation encompassing 283 milhon acres - a combined area of over one and one - half times the size of Texas. These areas range in size from road - side picnic grounds to Yellowstone National Park which covers 2.2 million acres or approximately 3,500 square miles, and is the largest park in the National Parks System. Approximately 10,000 of the recreational areas cover more than 4n acres. They provide vacationists with facilities for practically every form of outdoor activity. from horseshoe pitching to water - skiing.

Expanding interest in outdoor recreation, which has gained tremendous momentum since World War II, led Congress in 1958 to establish an independent body, known as the Outdoor Recreation Resources Review Commussion, to make a full - scale study of present and future needs in this field

One of the Commission's tecommendations, presented to Congress last January, was the creation of a Bureau of Outdoor Recreation within the Department of Interior to provide advice and assistance for nationwide recreation planning, not only at the federal level, but in communition with state and local efforts

Acting on this recommendation, Secretary of Interior Stewart Ud-all established the Bureau on April 2, 1962, and this year he of the total needs, but they could is espected to ask Congress for authority to define the tune loss of the new Bureau Another priority of I dall's is Outdoor recreation in the Uni- a program to finance a vast expansion of the National Park System and other outdoor facilities. He has placed special emphasis on acquiring more land in the sparsely populated areas of the west, but also hopes to expand recreational areas in the eastern part of the country.

The Secretary's proposal has met with opposition in the West from grazing, mining and lumber interests, as well as numerous ranchers who are loath to see additional land fall into the hands of the Federal Government, which already owns or controls large portions of several Western states.

In the East, the problem is largely a financial one, as land desirable for recreation is very expensive and is also in demand by private developers.

To pay for the expanded to creational facilities. Udall hopes obtain Congressional authority establish a land conservation fund. The fund would be financed through increased admission prices to parks, higher charges of the use of campsites and other facilities, and increased rates for boats in park areas. He also proposes the sale of an automobile sticker permitting a car and its occupants to enter all national parks at any time during the year.

Udail estimates $3 billion or more could be accumulated by these increased user taxes, and proposes that the money be divided equally between the Federal Government and the states, to be used solely for buying additional land for recreational purposes.

In its report to Congress, the Commission also urged increased participation by private enterprise in the ever expanding recreational program Pointing out that the government should not be expected to shoulder full responsibility in this field, the Commission suggested wider use of private lands. under proper safeguards for such activities as hunting and fishing. It also said private enterprise should be encouraged to provide recreation facilities of "Varying degrees of elaborateness from carride pienie grounds to laying Judgis and date ranches permit increasing insurance on deposits of both banks and sayings and loan associations from $10,000 to $25,000.

Just how much steam there will be behind the proposed legislation remains to be seen There is not much opposition to it, just that there is apparently no overwhelming interest in it because there is in the nation no fear of bank failure any more

But if the legislation favoring the increase became law with just a little push from the Kennedy Administration or no push at all it would not be surprising. It started without Presidential blessing. History is that although deposit insurance legislation, is now generally credited as one of the major accomplishments of the New Deal Administration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. it was no New Deal - backed measure at all and was enacted over the strong opposition of President Roosevelt, and signed by him reluctantly because it was in a bill tied in with other banking legislation which he wanted very urgently. The real fathers of the legislation were Vice President John Nance Garner: Jesse II. Jones, Chairman of the depression-born Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, of Michi-

Roosevelt and Garner discussed the issue hotly: "It won't work, Jack," Roosevelt told his Vice President. "The weak banks will pull down the strong ones. Garner, Jones and Vandenberg drafted the deposit insurance legislation and Vandenberg offered it as a Senate amendment to the Glass - Steagall banking bill on May 19, 1933.

When that measure reached conference between Senate and House, President Roosevelt wrote to the conference committee saying: "I must again express to you my definite feeling that the Vandenberg amendment must be rejected in toto." The conference committee left it in despite Roosevelt's objections. Original insurance was limited to $5,000 on an account. It was raised to $10,000 in 1951. The insuring agency is the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, established by the Vandenberg amendment. Later the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corportation was established to insure savings and loan accounts. There have been few failures of deposit - insured banks or savings and loan associations.

The FDIC reserve fund for insurance of bank deposits now totals more than $2,300,000,000 and that of FSLIC is about $650,000,-000. About 98.2 per cent of all bank depositors accounts are presently fully insured and it is estimated that raising the insurance limit to $25,000 would extend full protection to 99.4 per cent of accounts of depositors. Estimated dollar coverage of all bank de-

The Week In Focus

President Kennedy.

The Guillotine Falls

With the smoothness of a guillotine falling on an unexposed neck Charles de Gaulle, the dour old French president, has ripped the heart and soul from President Kennedy's world policy.

The blunt action came with startling swiftness although no one should have been surprised at Brussels the past week when the tough 72-year-old soldier vetoed Britain's entry into the European Common Market. It jolted the West to its foundation and set off reprecussions which will be felt for years to come.

De Gaulle's lofty snub of Britain, for all practical purposes killed the concept of European unity and Atlantic military partnership which is the core of President Kennedy's world

The French leader, who still dreams of French leadership again in Europe, and justifiably so is pictured as believing that Europe should be a force standing between the United States and the Soviet Union, independently wielding its own nuclear weaponry, even though he has no nuclear weapons to weild.

congentional army is necessary because Russia has the largest standing army in the world. It is the belief by many as a move to eliminate both British and U.S. influence from continental Europe. or at least cut it down. De Gualle, who sometimes, operates with the grandeur of Louis XIV dealing with peasants upset everyone with the way he did it, the contempt he showed for all concerned, despite the fact he had previously warned he would take the course he followed. He made it obviously plain be wanted Europe for Europeans only and considered the British Ba bunch of outsiders, hardly

CHARLES DE GAULLE more than errand boys for the Americans, and that he did not want France dependent entirely upon a coalition and on the United Nations, which he rightly

What will happen now? It is anyone's guess. At the week's end, the Atlantic alliance was groping for steady footing amid the far-ranging uncertainities of the act.

In an effort to keep in the running, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, flew to Italy to confer with officials of that nation, one of the five common market countries. He also said Britain would engage in a fierce fight to win higger markets overseas and to spur industrial growth at home through more efficiency in industry and harder work all around. He made it apparent Britsin will not let France have a monapoly at all, if he can keep it.

In Washington, opinions were a dime a dozen. There was talk that the U.S. might withdraw U.S. nuclear weapons and defensive forces from Europe, and exceedingly strong move, and one that is not boyical. In this event, it is believed the other nations, who wanted England in the market anyway, would desolve their pact with France, rather than lose U.S. protection.

If this happens, the fear is that France might make a separate pact with Russia and go it alone—as far as the Western Allies

At any rate just when it seemed the west was winning its mity was ripped apart and 12 years of hard work was tossed out the window by a gallant Frenchman who became very ungallant in politics, as far as some are concerned.

Obviously there is right and wrong on both sides, and no doubt both sides can advance some good, strong arguments for the action taken. De Gaulle wants France rebuilt to its former glory, and rightly so, because he believes to reinstill pride in his countrymen would make it a much stronger and more stable nation. This is one of the ways he hopes to accomplish this

The tragedy is that the dispute broke into the open at the time it did. As it stands now, the West could lose much.

The big winner, of course, was Russia's Khrushchev who no doubt has hoisted several toasts to the total success of the split and is now planning new moves aimed at widening the split.

Other Foreign Developments

ONE OF THE quickest reaction to the Western split by Russian was Khrushchev's surprising decision to break off the latest round of nuclear test ban talks, which came Thursday night. The U.S.-British-Soviet discussions, which opened three weeks ago amid high hopes of agreement on a test ban treaty, collapsed with the Soviets proposing that the talks be ended subject to resumption in Geneva Feb. 12.

IF THE TALK can be taken at face value, the Red Chinese might find a warm reception this time along the cold Indian frontier if they attack again. Indian Army officers at Tezpur claim it will be impossible for the Red Chinese to repeat last fall's success, penterate the eastern Himalayas, threaten Assma State and panic the area.

The U.S. commander in the Pacific predicts victory in three years over communist guerrillas seeking to take over South Viet Nam. The statement, the most optimistic yet voiced by a ranking U.S. official, was made by Admiral Harry D. Felt.

McNamara's Report

About the only government official in Washington the past week who gave the impression he knew where he was going and what he had was Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara. McNamara, described by some as a "polished gentlemen" and by others as a "man who will book no interference," visited Congress and gave out with some facts on the military situation. be called cheering.

He said, among other things; 1. There is increasing evidence that the Community unity of Russia and Red China had been "fractured - - perhaps irreparably." But he warned that "although there is some comfort in this, the world situation remains perilous, neverthless."

2. Pictured assault troops moving in hundreds of helicopters at , the end of an airborne supply line to outflank or surround enemy armies in limited wars. As presently envisaged, the air assault would be equipped with about 460 helicopters. He pointed out such troops would be especially valuable outside Europe. In effect, it would be the same tactics employed by the old horse-riding cavalry - - but at a much greater rate of speed. 3. That the U. S. will "retaliate in kind" to any Soviet nuclear attack - - striking back at cities "in controlled and deliberate way" if American cities are hit. He added, "by building into U. S. forces a flexible capability we at least eliminate the prospect that we could strike back in only one way, namely, against the entire Soviet target system."

4. That the U. S. is armed with a nuclear force of 650 bombers and more than 344 missiles primed for instant retaliation against any communist attack.

Members of the Congressional committee who heard Mc-Namara said they felt better after his far-ranging discussion.

Winds Of Change The winds of change are blowing down the wrong alley for Only 17 days ago the President wound up his State of the Union message to Congress in happy optimism. And he closed on a note of hope because the "winds of change are blowing" and he said he welcomed them.

He had just finished saving how dandy the Western alliance was doing that it was moving to a "unity of purpose" in every sphere of activity

Even as he was talking the wind took a sudden shiftone he didn't want. It came on the frigid blast from French President Charles de Gaulle who picked that day to make a joke of unity, then capped it off the past week by ripping it apart by vetoing British entry into the Common Market and in effect discarding Kennedy's plans for Naclear Armament for the Western Alliance

Now the winds are blowing through the Western Alliance like a tornado through a farm shack in the hills

If that wasn't enough, a few hours later the U.S. became involved in a damaging argument with Canada--a long-time friendly neighbor and ally-an argument that may disrupt the two nation's friendship for years to come and over the same

The dispute developed when the U.S. told Canada that nuclear weapons are necessary to the joint U.S.-Canadian defense of the North American continent. In effect, the U.S. wants Canada to arm its forces with U.S. nuclear warheads to counter the Soviet nuclear-armed bomber fleet that might come in over the North Pole. Canada doesn't want to do so

The U.S. statement was blunt 1997 -and came at a time when the government of Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker was facing an unstable political situation.

Diefenbaker fired back and said that Canada will not be a satellite and will not be pushed or accept external interference in making decisions. Canada's defense Min-k ister Douglas Harkness emphasized bluntly that U.S. criticism® will not change his nation's defense policies. The U.S. aim is to make the free world as strong as possible with U.S. nuclear weapons, under U.S. control. In doing so, it is running into untold opposition. The result of the Canadian

J. G. DIEFENBAKER dispute could be the fall of Dietenbaker's government, and a coldness between U.S. and Canada for years to come.

On the Congressional front where an ear is generally cocked toward the voter back home, President Kennedy also found the

During the past week, he sent to Congress two more favorate proposals-A $5 billion aid-to-education bill and one that would revamp to a degree the farm program.

The comprehensive education program is designed to aid students from grade school to graduate school and give them more classrooms and better teachers. However, it contains the at elements which will rekindle the bitter public-parochial school dispute that killed the entire administration education program

Optimism that the President would get all be asked or even half of it was scarce, even among his most ardent supporters. In fact, a congressional aid said emphatically, "The entire proposal hasn't got a prayer of passing."

On the farm proposal, the President shifted from compulsory to voluntary controls in his approach to farm surplus problems-but even here the applause in Congress was far from deafening. His plan, he said, might cut $300 to $500 million off the government's outlay for farm supports, and give consumers a 10-cent cut in the price of butter.

Even on the proposed tax cut and reform measures. Kennedy was running into plenty of trouble. Although still pretty much in the dark on the fine points of the plan, it seems most Americans aren't buying the product too well and of course this is being reflected in Congress. Secretary of Treasury Douglas Dillion claims the Kennedy administration can and will handle the deficit resulting from the tax cut.

The President's chief economical adviser, Waler W. Haller, used the world Puritanical to describe the numerous taxpayers who are resisting the administration's effort to give them a tax reduction. The dictionary defines puritanical as morally rigorous; strict; as, for example puritanical women, laws, behavior and Haller, incidentally, is a spender and disciple of the late Maynard Keynes, who damaged the U.S. in this century more than George III or the hated Lord North ever injured the colonies in the 18th. It was Keynes who sold FDR on the "spend vourself out of trouble" fiscal policy that did not work.

As a final blow before the weekend came-when the Senate killed any change for 1963 in its filibuster rule by tabling a liberal motion designed to clear the way for stricter crackdowns on talkathons. The vote was 53 to 42.

Washington Short Takes

A POLITICAL adviser to President Kennedy says "very candidly we're in for a hell of a battle" in the 1964 presidential election. The statement was made by Lawrence O'Brien, assistant to the President whose specialty is dealing with Congress. And he also said that "we're in for a hell of a battle in the 88th Congress." . . .

SENATOR HARRY F. Byrd, the soft-spoken Virginian, raised his voice slightly the past week and demanded the dismissal of Budget Director Kermit Gordon on grounds that he "thinks a balanced budget would be a castastrophe." Gordon immediately denied he implied such an idea.

THE STATE Department reports it is considering the possibility of releasing long-secret testimony taken in the 1961 senatorial investigation of the Cuban invasion disaster. Many facets surrounding the failure of the invasion and the resulting buildup of Russian military forces are still being discussed heattdly. This came about the time that Senator Kenneth B. Keating of New York was charging that the Soviet Union is pressing a new military buildup in Cuba. He charged that a Soviet ship arrived in Cuba a few days ago and unloaded a cargo of armaments, and that there is a continuing absolutely-confirmed and undeniable evidence that the Soviets are maintaining the missile bases that led to last October's crisis. The Defense Department denied the charges. . . .

SENATOR STUART Symington of Missouri was fiery the past week. He charged that a 10-month Senate investigation had disclosed "fantastic profit taking" and favoritism" in the multibillion dollar stockpile program. And he pledged to seek legislative remedies for what he called abuses uncovered into costly surpluses in the nation's strategic inventories.

MEANWHILE, THE Atomic Energy Commission says it plans to prove in the next five years that it is practical, safe, and cheap to gouge canals, dig harbors, and blast mineral wealth from the earth with nuclear explosives. Well this is a better use for it than making holes in the ground where cities stand . . .

> Due home today is JAN AD-COCK, who has been on a college cirl's dream trip. Leaving Tues-day with LYNN NELSON of Jackson, Miss., a friend from LSU, Jan went first to Chapel Hill, North Carolina, for two days at the University, and then to Lexington, Virginia This was the weekend for Fancy Dress at Washington and Lee university, one of the high points on the East Coast college social calendar. Jan attended the entire whirl of two days of parties. She is to arrive Monroe today and return to LSU next week.

And speaking of fancy dress, word has reached us of the Confederate party given in St. Joseph by RUTH and BILL WATSON and CLIFFORD and BERT BERRY last week. A house built before the War Between the States was seene of the party, and hosts and many guests wore suitable ante-bellum attire. A double row of candles under paper sacks lighted the long curving drive leading to the house. Inside, Confederate flags and bunting decorated the rooms, which were cleared for dancing and lit entirely by candlelight and open fires. The large number of guests from throughout Northeast Louisiana included Monroyans FRANK BREECE and PAT and STAN BAGWELL.

Last Saturday alumnae, mothers, and friends of Delta Beta Sigma were invited to a silver tea given by the sorority to raise funds toward support of the Korean orphan "adopted" by the group. Alumnae who attended were charmed to find on display scrapbooks going back twenty-five years, with pictures and newspa per clippings covering the activi-ties of members both during their active years in the sorority and later. Squeals of delight greeted pictures of the Neville homecoming court of 1945; brides and their attendants from 1943; off-tocollege pictures; and others care fully hoarded by faithful histori ans through the years.

QUESTION: My son saw a picture in a magazine of a lamp made from the sawed-off thick end of a baseball bat, He wants me to make one for his room.

I think I can handle it all right, but I'm puzzled as to how to make a lengthwise hole through the bat through which the lamp cord will go, Can you belp me?

ANSWER: The simplest way is to saw off the handle of the bat to the desired length and take the thick end to a woodworking shop for the drilling of the hole.

But if you want to do the job yourself: first saw off the handle and then saw lengthwise through the thick end of the bat. Buy a length of oneeighth inch pipe, threaded at both ends. Be sure the pipe is long enough to cover not only the length of the bat, but the thickness of the lamp base and the part to which the lamp socket will be attached. Cut matching grooves along the inside of each half of the bat. When you are sure the pipe will fit into the grooves, glue the halves of the bat together and clamp or tie together for 24 hours. If you decide this is too much trouble and want to have the hole drilled in a woodworking shop, be sure to purchase the pipe first and take it with you.

SOUTHERN GARDENER Societies

Boost Plants

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT Ardent gardeners usually belong to one of the societies which promote their favorite plants, iris, rose, hemerocallis, African violets, geran-jums and so on. fn California, there is a bulb society, and, in recent years, a holly society was formed. The test gardens in different parts of the country test out the roses or irises or daylilies of these different climatic areas. The test gardens are watched over and supported by the societies, but every gardener can visit them.

SOCIETIES

In this vast country of ours, the regional groups of the American Iris Society. the American Rose Society. two of the oldest, have carried out an immensely valuable program which has furnished us with information about the irises and roses best suited to our regions. The hundreds of new varieties of these flowers are grown in these gardens every year and the best ones se-

Its distinguished editor, Mr. B. Y. Morrison, has labored to produce one of the very finest gardening publications in the world. Membership in the society costs 86 a year.

Several years ago, The American Horticultural Congress merged with American Horticultural Society. This has given us a truly national society. At the 150th anniversary of The Royal Horticultural Society in England, your columnist was proud, indeed, to represent such a splendid organization.

ENLARGED SCOPE

Several years ago, The American Amaryllis Society enlarged its scope to become The American Plant Life Society. In its first years, this society had become famous for The Amaryllis Year Book which it still produces. We can recommend this society for its many activities in bulb breeding and for its international scope in bringing together the contributions of the world of plant scientists. The Amaryllis Year Book contains many articles from Southerners. For membership, write to P. O. Box 150, La Jolla, California, Dues

Move Plants Outdoors

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

When warm days occur, remove house plants to sunny porches. After having been shut up in hot, dry rooms, most plants will be revived to considerable extent if moved to the outdoor areas. Avoid subjecting the plants to great extremes of night and day

temperatures.

Yellowing of leaves is a common problem during winter months. It may be caused by poor drainage, inadequate or spasmodic watering, gas fumes, poor light, or a combination of these factors.

WORKSHOP

Yours truly will be working with the following homemakers this week in a workshop at the Agricultural Auditorium in clothing construction: Betty Rankin, Mrs. Milton Hall, Mrs. John Gibhardt, Mrs. L. D. Ritter, Mrs. M. A. Bodron, Mrs. James Goisler, Mrs. Sadie Coe. Mrs. J. E. Lindsay. Mrs. Margaret Riser, Mrs Elva Haynes, Mrs. Berna Blankenship, Mrs. Doyle Sconyers. Mrs. Reba Cummings, and Mrs. John Luffey

Cotton is still the most popular fabric in our area and these modern cottons can save time and money for you, Mrs. Homemaker, if you treat them properly. These cottons are called wash 'n wear, minimum care and drip - dry. They are treated with chemicals which give them a resin finish. This finish becomes a part of the fabric, making it resistant to wrinkles, soils and stains. Easy care is the most wonderful quality of these new cottons, and they may be washed the same way as untreated cottons, with these exceptions: They should be washed in cool or warm. not hot water. Wash with mild detergent and if bleach is necessary an oxygen bleach should be used.

If hot water is used the cotton will crease and wrinkle Strong detergent is not be cessary since the material does not soil as much as untreated cottons. Most treated cottons are damaged by a chlorine type bleach. White lowed after such a bleach is

CHOLESTEROL

We have been questioned about cholesterol. This current rage of the diet world has been the object of discussion and has caused alternation in eating habits. So to answer the questions from some of you homemakers what then is cholesterol. It is a complex alcobol known as steral a yellowish, waxy substance that, in the human body is an essential constitutent of the cells. It is found in two forms: free in nerve and brain tissue and in the blood cells, and combined with fatty acids. Cholesterol esters are chiefly in the adrenal cortex and in blood plasma. Now where does it come from" It is formed in the liver, from tals mainly, but also from protein and carbohydrate. This is the latest information from our nutrition

Advertising helped it happen

By stimulating mass demand, advertising helped create a mass market for portable typewriters. As demand grew, more and more were made. The more of them made, the less each cost. Result: new and better portable typewriters mass produced for more people at lower prices by America's remarkable and competitive economic system. Is this worthwhile? Then, so is advertising worthwhile.

EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY

National 40-year-old manufacturing company will appoint a person in this area for an exclusive distributorship of our line of unusual, recently developed products which are in demand industrially, commercially, and through retail outlets to the general public. We offer our distributors aggressive company support, local and national advertising, central warehousing, drop shipping and the carrying of approved open accounts for you. These products have been proven through repeat purchases throughout the United States and distributor success has been proven by successful distributors. The company will stand rigid investigation. We require a person interested in building a business of his own with a better than average income and a growing and secure future. No investment required other than small inventory. This distributorship may be started in SPARE TIME and developed into a full time operation. We are establishing only one distributor in each sales area on an exclusive basis. Other areas in Louisiana open. For Interview with factory representative, call Paul E. Nelson, Hollday Inn Motel. Phone FA 5-3845.

Here's a real dilly for anyone who wants to serve extra-special olives. First, open the container and pour off the juice. Put the olives in an old jar and

DEAR HELOISE:

One of my pet saving methods is for canned pimentos:

Whenever I open a can of pimentos, I wrap them separately in aluminum foil and replace them in the can. I cover the top of the can and put them in the freezer until I am ready to use pimento again.

When frozen, these little individual pimentos can beshaved off in fine slivers. This beats having them spoil in the refrigerator after having been left open a few P. L.

DEAR HELOISE:

Would you please tell al. of your readers that they could avoid many automobile smash-ups by rememberring that for each tenmiles of speed, they should be one car length behind the car in front of them"

For example: If you are driving 30 miles per hour you should be three car lengths behind the car ahead of you. If you are going 60 miles, you should be six car lengths behind. Perhaps if it came through

DEAR HELOISE:

The secret for making muffins is in the mixing.

The batter must be stirred, never beaten. .The dry ingredients are only thoroughly moistened and at this stage the mixture will appear lumpy and rough. When the muffins are overbeaten, everything goes wrong and an inferior

DEAR HELOISE:

I buy large boxes of cake mix, then cut the box in half, saving the other half to bake another time. By dividing the box in two. I can whip up a small cake which is just right for two people, and will be fresh for several days. Or one can measure it out and put the remaining portion in a jar with a lid.
